About Alopecia Areata Awareness Month:

Alopecia Awareness Month is recognized each September. It was started by the National Alopecia Areata Foundation to raise awareness of the disease. Alopecia Areata is an autoimmune hair loss disease which affects five million men, women and children in the U.S. as well as 117 million people worldwide. Alopecia Areata occurs in males and females of all ages and ethnicities. It is estimated that approximately two percent of the U.S. population (or over 4.5 million people) will be affected at some point in their lives. With Alopecia Areata; the affected hair follicles are mistakenly attacked in groups by a person's own immune system, resulting in the arrest of the hair growth stage. These affected follicles become very small, drastically slow down production and grow no hair visible above the surface for months or years. The scalp is the most commonly affected area, but the beard or any hair-bearing site can be affected alone or together with the scalp. The National Alopecia Areata Foundation funds research to find a cure, support those with the disease and educate the public.
